Mayflower II Nears Plymouth Destination

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., June 11 (AP)—Mayflower II rocked and rolled and bobbed along her devious way from Plymouth, England for Plymouth, Mass., today as the day waned was heading almost due east, reaching for Provincetown, on Cape Cod's sandy extremity.

There was nothing wrong with reversal of Mayflower's original course. Her skipper, British naval reserve Cmdr. Alan Villiers, is an old hand with windships. He had taken her far south of a direct crossing to take advantage, first of the trade winds, then up the coast with a two knot Gulf Stream bonus, much needed by his chubby charge.

Now it is necessary to work offshore to approach this fishing port, tucked in the hook of the cape.

Villiers elected to pass inside Nantucket Lightship, marking the "crossroads of the Atlantic," passing between it and Nantucket Island and over the shoals bearing the same name.

Light Wind

The wind was light, from the southwest, bearing on Mayflower's starboard quarter. She was making about three knots.

Mayflower II, bark-rigged and a copy of the original Pilgrim ship, possesses an uneasy, uncomfortable motion in a seaway and frequently spilled the wind from her sails.

Often she plunged her buff bow so deep into the swells that the flapping sprit sail beneath her towering bowsprit skimmed the water.

Mayflower II had proper company today—the Coast Guard's training ship Eagle, also a bark. The Eagle formerly was the German training ship Horst Wessel, but became a prize in the last war.

Also in an escort role were a Coast Guard cutter, a Navy destroyer escort and two Navy blimps.

Although Mayflower II did not pursue the route taken by the famous original, she reached common waters today in Provincetown Harbor. There will be re-enacted the signing of the Mayflower Compact, which laid the foundation for a new civilization.

When will Mayflower reach Provincetown, and when Plymouth?

It is anyone's guess. She has no specific time of arrival, something ruled out by the vagaries of the winds.

As evening fell, Mayflower II was slowly whittling down the last 100 miles separating her from a mooring buoy in Provincetown Harbor. There will be re-enacted the signing of the Mayflower Compact, which laid the foundation for a new civilization.

Conservatives In Key Position

TORONTO, June 11 (AP)—Canada's victorious Conservatives looked today to the possibility of a new election to clinch control of the government.

Monday's election ended the Liberal party's 22-year rule but failed to give the Conservatives a clear majority.

Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent, Liberal leader, is expected to resign after he meets with colleagues later this week. John Diefenbaker, Conservative chief, then can accept the responsibility of forming a new government. Or he can decline and force a new election by letting the Liberals lose a test vote in the House of Commons.

Some influential circles recommend the latter course. Because of the difficulty of carrying on without a solid majority, the Globe and Mail (Conservative) said in an editorial, "It most likely will be necessary to have an other general election in the immediate future."

Attempt

The Conservatives could attempt to rule for a while, with the cooperation of one or more of the smaller parties, to allow a breather before the next election. This would have the advantage of permitting Diefenbaker to submit to Parliament a legislative program, including the tax cuts and old age pension increases he promised during the campaign.

The Conservatives won 110 of the 265 seats in the House and the Liberals won 103. For a majority a party needs 134 seats, since one member of the winning party becomes speaker.

In 1945, the Liberals were able to govern without a clear majority, but they were only a few votes short. Earlier attempts to operate with a minority party in 1925 were unsuccessful.

In the present case, it probably would be necessary to form a working arrangement with the Social Credit party, which has 19 seats, and some of the 6 independent.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, has promised to cooperate with any party forming a government, but a major party would find this difficult on a long-term basis.

The Socialist party, with 24 seats, apparently will not cooperate with either major party.

Political observers still were trying to fathom the reasons for the swing in Monday's election. A main factor seems to have been a feeling that the Liberals had wielded too much power for too long. The voters apparently agreed with the Tory slogan that "it's time for a change."

Senate Backs Increase

HARRISBURG, June 11 (AP)—The Senate today approved 49-0 and sent to Gov. Leader a bill that would raise the state $2.50 fishing license fee to $3.25 beginning next year.

Federal Roads Administrator To Be Present At Pennsylvania Motor Federation Meeting

BERTRAM D. Tallamy, federal roads administrator and chief of the greatest road-building program in world history, is among the officials who will take part in the Pennsylvania Motor Federation's 51st annual meeting opening tonight at Pocono Manor.

He will share the spotlight at Thursday's sessions with Joseph J. Lawler, state secretary of highways.

Gov. George M. Leader will speak at the closing session Friday morning.

Major attention of the meetings will be given to highway building programs, and to current legislation affecting motorists and the

State Charges Irregular Payments

HARRISBURG, June 11 (AP)—The Commonwealth contended in court today that payment of certain Pennsylvania Turnpike contracts were speeded up as part of an alleged conspiracy to fleece the toll road commission of 19½ million dollars.

Franklin B. Summers, Turnpike comptroller, testified that there were changes made in the handling of a commission contract with a Reading engineering firm on which the prosecution bases its alleged conspiracy charges.

The contract under discussion was one with Manu-Mine Research and Development Co., of Reading.

Claim

The Commonwealth claims the company asked for almost eight million dollars for filling mine voids beneath a section of the Northeastern Extension of the toll road.

Nine men were indicted on charges of conspiracy.

"How was the Manu-Mine contract treated by the commission?" asked Dist. Atty. Huette F. Downing.

"As an engineering contract through June 2 payment and then it was paid as construction contract," Summers testified.

Summers explained that the Manu-Mine contract, which was approved Feb. 28, 1955, was given what he termed a "number."

He said numbers were given to only construction contracts and when so handled call for partial payment of bills to contractors without immediate commission approval.

The defense contended since the trial opened last Tuesday that the commission engaged in an engineering contract with the Reading firm and because of that it was not required that the pact be awarded through competitive bidding.

In earlier testimony, Highways Secretary Joseph J. Lawler disclosed that he "did not get along" with a suspended Chairman G. Franklin McSorley.

Both are Democrats. Lawler was called as a Commonwealth witness because he is an ex-officio member of the Turnpike Commission.

Suspension

McSorley was suspended from the chairmanship after he was indicted on a charge of misconduct in office which is unrelated to the alleged conspiracy.

"Let me tell you something, McSorley and I didn't get along but McSorley and Torrance did get along very well," Lawler testified.

James F. Torrance, Export Republic was suspended as a commissioner after he was charged with the alleged conspiracy.

Former Chairman Thomas J. Evans, Coalade, also a Republican, was indicted on the conspiracy charge.

Lawler made the statement after McSorley was described by a defense attorney as a "Democratic colleague" of the highway secretary.

Minutes later Lawler drew laughter from the partially filled court room when a defense attorney noticed he was smiling during cross examination.

"Is there something funny, Mr. Lawler?" the attorney asked.

"I have a right to laugh if I want to—this is not Russia. Am I supposed to go into mourning because you are questioning me?" Lawler inquired.

Defense Counsel H. G. Stutzman drew a snappy response from Lawler after referring to the highways secretary as "Mr. McSorley."

"You owe me an apology," Lawler snapped.

During Summers' testimony he developed the handling of contracts for the Northeastern Extension as far back as October 1954 when he said there existed a $13 million dollar commission surplus in money allocated for construction of the spur.

Partial Victory

WASHINGTON, June 11 (AP)—The Senate gave the Eisenhower administration a partial victory tonight by passing a $3,668,972,157 farm money bill including continued and broad authority for the soil bank plan. Passage was by a unanimous 78-0 vote.

They said he had entered the country legally on a student visa, and had told the story of his "illegal entry" in hopes of being deported to Seoul. He used the name of a friend in Seoul, "Ti Won Lee."

The officials said Kim told them he was not doing well in his studies and had spent most of his allowance.

They said officials at Louisville, a junior college, had confirmed Kim's account.

Meanwhile, the boy, who walked into police headquarters last night with only 26 cents, was given a meal.

Immigration officials said they did not expect to take any action against him.

Father's Contest Ends Today

HEY, KIDS, this is the last day to enter the "Why Pops Is Tops" contest being sponsored by The Daily Record.

All boys and girls not over 14 years old may compete by submitting a letter of not more than 200 words on why they think their father is the most wonderful dad in the world.

Just mail the letter to Father's Day Editor, Daily Record, Stroudsburg, so that it is postmarked not later than midnight tonight or bring it to the office before the deadline.

Cash prizes of $10 for first, $5 for second and $3 for third will be presented to the kids writing the best letters.

A panel of judges will announce the winners before Father's Day, which is Sunday. Children of Daily Record employees are not eligible to compete for the awards.

Dulles Denies Part In Girard Case

WASHINGTON, June 11 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said today he neither made nor was consulted about a U. S. decision to turn over GI William S. Girard to a Japanese court for trial.

But Dulles in an affidavit filed in federal court expressed no dissent to the arrangement.

Dulles' affidavit was submitted in answer to a subpoena for him to appear before federal Judge Joseph McGarraghy at a hearing on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus to bring Girard back to the United States.

Day-long arguments over the legal move ended without a decision.

McGaraghy allowed Girard's attorneys until Friday to file additional citations supporting their contention that the 21-year-old soldier's constitutional rights to American justice are being "bar-gained away."

U. S. Atty. Oliver Gasch said he would probably stand on his briefs and oral arguments backing up the government decision to yield jurisdiction over Girard to Japan.

McGaraghy promised a speedy ruling after Gasch said prompt settlement of the dispute is needed so the United States may "continue to look other nations in the eye and not be accused of renege-ing on our obligations."

While McGarraghy set no date, his remarks indicated a ruling may come by the latter part of next week.

Dulles said in his affidavit he concluded, in agreement with Secretary of Defense Wilson, that it is of the "greatest importance" for the United States to "honor its commitments" with foreign nations.

He also declared the decision to allow the Japanese to prosecute Girard conformed with the "existing treaty and other agreements" between this country and Japan.

Dulles said he had "no personal knowledge whatsoever" of events leading to Girard's detainment for the death of a Japanese woman last Jan. 30. For that reason, he said, it would be useless for him to testify.

McGaraghy granted a government motion to quash subpoenas issued for Dulles, Wilson and Secretary of the Army Brucker.

Girard, of Ottawa, Ill., is the central figure in an international uproar over the authority of a Japanese court to try an American soldier.

Korean Boy Changes Story

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 11 (AP)—A South Korean boy who told police he entered the United States as a stowaway reversed his story today and said he was a student at Louisville, N. C., College looking for a way back home to Seoul.

Immigration officials said that Young Bay Kim, 19, son of a prominent attorney in Seoul, told them he left school May 20 and has been traveling around the east coast.

Entry

They said he had entered the country legally on a student visa, and had told the story of his "illegal entry" in hopes of being deported to Seoul. He used the name of a friend in Seoul, "Ti Won Lee."

The officials said Kim told them he was not doing well in his studies and had spent most of his allowance.

They said officials at Louisville, a junior college, had confirmed Kim's account.

Meanwhile, the boy, who walked into police headquarters last night with only 26 cents, was given a meal.

Immigration officials said they did not expect to take any action against him.

In his first account to authorities Kim said he had no family or relatives and had jumped ship in New York with $350.

Session Set For Trade Board

PORTLAND — The Community Board of Trade will meet tonight at 7:30 at Tuscarora Inn for installation of officers.

The officers are headed by Fred Helms as president.

United States Makes Pledge To Allies

WASHINGTON, June 11 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles pledged today the United States will never disregard the views of its allies in order "to make speed with the Soviet Union" on an East-West disarmament agreement.

At a news conference, he promised to avoid any proposal for a European test disarmament zone until the European governments themselves have decided what to do about this problem.

Statement

Dulles' remarks were clearly aimed at reassuring Britain, France and other European nations who have complained about confidential talks disarmament specialist Harold Stassen has conducted in London with Soviet representatives.

These complaints have indicated a fear that Stassen and the Soviet delegate, Valerian Zorin, might work out a first-stage disarmament agreement involving Europe without full European participation.

"We are not going to throw into the discard the views of our allies merely in the interest of making progress on a bilateral basis with the Soviet Union," Dulles said.

"We attach first importance to our relations with our allies and we shall not sacrifice that relationship..."

Missile Misfires At Launching In Florida

MISSILE TEST CENTER, Cape Canaveral, Fla., June 11 (AP)—The first test of the intercontinental Atlas apparently miscarried today as an aerial explosion occurred soon after a spectacular missile launching.

Air Force officials said there were no casualties. They did not identify the missile as the 5,000-mile range Atlas, but sources which have been completely accurate in the past said afterward that it was the big ocean-spanning rocket.

Thousands of spectators saw a bright flash of orange flame as the missile streaked from its Cape Canaveral launching site and rose straight upward. There was an explosion in the sky, and something crashed into the sea. A terse Air Force announcement said the missile itself blew up.

Announcement

"A missile was fired at the Air Force Missile Test Center's Cape Canaveral launching site today. Shortly after the launching the missile exploded," said Capt. Thomas Martin, deputy chief public information officer at nearby Patrick Air Force Base.

"There were no casualties. Valuable information was gained as a result of the test. Extensive flight testing of rocket missiles in support of the long-range ballistics missile program and others has been going on for some time. These tests will be continued. We have no additional information which can be released."

Onlookers closest to the launching said the missile began wobbling off course almost immediately after takeoff.

5,000 Riot In Algiers

ALGIERS, June 11 (AP)—More than 5,000 Frenchmen rioted in Algiers today. They beat up Algerians, burned automobiles and wrecked hundreds of shops in reprisal for nationalist rebel bombings.

A communique reported five Algerians and a European woman were killed and eight Europeans injured. Official and private sources said 12 Algerians were killed and 40 other Algerians and Europeans were injured in the day-long disorders.

Arrested

About 200 rioters were arrested. Reinforced police and paratroopers finally restored a semblance of order at nightfall.

In one last burst of violence, hundreds of demonstrators were turned back by a human wall of special police as they surged toward Algeria's central administration building in midtown.

Police hurled tear gas grenades. The mob finally broke up into small fragments.

The greatest devastation was spread through the Bab el Oued district of hundreds of Algerian stores. Nearly every store was wrecked before the mobs departed.

The French were venting their wrath over the bombing of a dance hall that killed eight Frenchmen and wounded 83 Sunday.

New Jersey's CIO Council Hears Legislation Report

FOREST PARK—New Jersey Republican legislators are using their party caucus "not to consider party strategy but rather as a shield against public disclosure of Republican legislators' positions on controversial bills," a report made to the New Jersey State CIO Council said last night.

In his report Joel R. Jacobson, executive vice president and legislative director of the New Jersey Council said that "this GOP fear of a highly scientific mechanism to kill sorely-needed legislation in the interests of all New Jersey citizens, without assuming the responsibility of answering to voters for their actions."

Jacobson's report also warned that aspirants for public office "from assemblymen and senators right on up to the gubernatorial candidates will be given CIO endorsement only on the basis of the candidate's voting record on the CIO's 11-point legislative program and not on 'Fourth of July' speeches about how much they 'love' labor."

Jacobson challenged the GOP leadership in the State Legislature to pass an extension to the State's rent control law as one point in the CIO's legislative program.

Plans Regular Schedule Of Events Today

WASHINGTON, June 11 (AP)—Smiling and joking, President Eisenhower went back to work for a while today—just about recovered, his doctors said, from a stomach upset caused by "a slight overindulgence in some types of food."

The President walked briskly and looked fine as he showed up unexpectedly in his White House office with few if any visible effects of the seizure which brought specialists to his bedside and caused him to cancel all appointments yesterday and today.

He is scheduled to resume his regular schedule of engagements tomorrow but will not hold the customary Wednesday news conference.

Bulletin

A medical bulletin prepared at 4 p.m., six hours after the President returned to his duties, said: "The President has almost completed his recovery from a mild stomach upset."

"For luncheon the President had prunes, fricassee chicken, whole wheat toast and honey, and a glass of skim milk."

"His pulse is normal. His blood pressure is 124 over 80. His pulse is 74. His respiration is 80. His weight is 172½ pounds."

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said all these figures are normal for the President—who, Hagerty said, lost no weight as a result of the stomach disorder which began to plague him Sunday night.

Hagerty also said Eisenhower's difficulty apparently stemmed, in the doctors' view, from eating more and richer food than his diet calls for.

He could have done this while viewing naval maneuvers off the Florida Coast late last week. The President has been on a diet since he suffered a heart attack in 1955.

His first back-in-business appointment will be a breakfast meeting with about 40 Republican House members tomorrow.

Today's restricted diet apparently was not entirely to the President's liking.

State Court Ends Sentence

PHILADELPHIA, June 11 (AP)—The Pennsylvania Superior Court today set aside the conviction of communist James Dolsen of Pittsburgh for violation of the state Sedition Act. Dolsen was sentenced to 20 years in prison and fined $10,000.

Invaluing both the prison penalty and the fine, the Superior Court said its action was based on the United States Supreme Court decision which held that a conviction on charges of attempting to overthrow the federal government or the government of a state may be obtained only in a U. S. court.

Senate In Early Morning Session

HARRISBURG, Wednesday, June 12 (AP)—The Senate went into an early morning session today still debating the huge $111,000,000 general appropriations bill.

At midnight, more than 10 hours of discussion had been devoted to the huge money-spending measure with Republicans knocking down repeated Democratic efforts to restore GOP-imposed budget cuts.

PARENTS PLAYED HOSTS to the 106 graduates of East Stroudsburg Area Joint High School at a party given at the Willow Dell after the commencement program. There was dancing followed by a midnight buffet. Cash prizes were awarded to two couples in an elimination dance. Winners were Bob Huffman and Dottie Lou Wiedmyer, and Jack Wallie and Carole Hilyard. Chaperoning the party were Mr. and Mrs. Jesse R. Flory, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Kessner, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Vieschnicki, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Baxter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lupin, Mr. and Mrs. William Altier.

CONSTIPATED?

New laxative discovery un-locks bowel blocks without pain, blood or gripes

Constipation is caused by what doctors call a "thrifty" colon that, instead of retaining moisture as it should, does the opposite: robs the colon of so much moisture that its contents become dehydrated, so dry that they block the bowel; so stricken that they fail to excite or stimulate the urge to purge that propels and expels waste from your body.

To regain normal regularity, the dry, shrunken, constipating contents of your colon which now block your bowel must be re-moistened. Second, bulk must be brought to your colon to S-T-R-E-T-C-H STIMULATE it to action; to a normal urge to purge. And, of all laxatives, only COLONAL, the amazing new laxative discovery possesses COLONAL's great moisturiz-

ing capacity, plus COLONAL's stretch-stimulating bulk. So effective it relieves even chronic constipation overnight, COLONAL is yet so smooth, so gentle it has proved safe even for women in critical stages of pregnancy. Superior to old style bulk, salt or drug laxatives, COLONAL neither gags, bloats nor grips; won't interfere with absorption of vitamins and other valuable food nutrients; in clinical tests, did not cause rash or other reactions. It's a physiological fact: Exercise tones your body! And COLONAL exercises your colon to tone it against constipation, overnight! Get COLONAL, in easy-to-take tablet form at any drug counter, today! Line Material To Enlarge Plant In East Stroudsburg

Work Slated To Begin In Summer

G. L. SMERZ, plant manager of Line Material Industries, East Stroudsburg, announced yesterday that the board of directors of the McGraw-Edison Co. have authorized a half million dollar building program for the local plant.

The expansion program, which is scheduled to begin this summer, includes an addition to the warehouse facilities, a new galvanizing building and an addition to the existing assembly department.

The warehouse addition will be a new building of 16,500 square feet, which will be erected between the existing warehouse and Lackawanna Ave. It will have new truck and rail dock facilities and its construction will entail relocation of an existing rail spur track.

The new manufacturing facilities will be contained in a building of 12,500 square feet which will be erected between the existing manufacturing and warehouse structures. This addition will contain an entirely new galvanizing department, which will replace the similar unit now in use, and an assembly bay immediately adjacent. It is expected that these facilities will increase the efficiency and capacity of the plant.

Line Materials Industries first came to East Stroudsburg in 1925, when it bought the Galvanized Products Co. on the present site. This Pennsylvania plant is one of 12 plants in the Line Material family and it manufactures hardware for the electric utility industry, street light brackets, airport lighting equipment and associated products.

Commissioners To Increase Spending

MONROE COUNTY Commissioners expect to spend close to $38,000 more this year compared to 1956.

However, Chief Clerk H. Ray Saunders reported yesterday that the county board will hold to the 14-mill tax rate which residents paid last year.

Commissioners approved a general budget with total estimated expenditures of $332,220, and okayed institution district appropriations amounting to $117,140. Last year, estimated expenditures for general operating purposes totaled $310,595, or close to $22,000 less than for 1957. Institution district appropriations for 1956 amounted to $101,500, or almost $16,000 less than for the current year.

Note Saunders noted that residents will continue to pay 10-mills for general county purposes, while a four-mill levy will again be collected for the institutional district.

The chief clerk pointed out that the county board was able to hold to the 14-mill rate because of an additional $2-million in assessed valuation for this year. Saunders said taxes will be collected on $23,400,067 in real estate, and on $2,175,661 in the occupations levy. This involves a total assessment of $25,575,728.

The largest item in the general budget this year, Saunders said, will be $72,300 in capital outlay. A large portion of this amount will be used for the tax equalization program.

Reformed Synod Ends 151st Meeting

By Paul Carlson
BUCK HILL, FALLA—General Synod of the Reformed Church in America ended its 151st meeting here yesterday after urging the National Council of Churches to safeguard the rights of all religious bodies to radio and television time.

The synod "urgently" petitioned the National Council's Broadcasting and Film Commission and its General Board to formulate "a clearer and more comprehensive statement of policy with regard to religious broadcasting."

Delegates took this action after receiving overtures from the classes (similar to presbyteries) of Illinois, Minn., Muskegon, Mich., and Passaic, N. J., as well as the particular Synod of Michigan.

The overtures were prompted by an "Advisory Policy Statement on Religious Broadcasting," adopted by the Broadcasting and Film Commission on March 9, 1956, and endorsed by the N.C.C.'s general board a month later.

This document called upon broadcasting stations to give free time to church groups and advised against the sale of time for such broadcasts. Some of the overtures took the statement to mean the National Council was seeking to exercise control over Protestant broadcasting ventures and was also trying to eliminate broadcasting on a paid basis.

While it commended the commission for its efforts to protect the rights of the churches to use radio and television in "spreading the Word of God," the synod urged the commission to incorporate the following principles into its policy:

One—That it encourage broadcasting stations to provide to churches and other religious bodies "a reasonable amount of free time" under the public service clauses of their licenses. Two—That it encourage broadcasters to sell a "reasonable" amount of time to religious groups along with the free time which has or has not been granted.

Three—That it insure the rights of all churches to be heard, whether or not they are affiliated with the National Council, and thus "safeguard our priceless heritage of freedom of speech and of religious witness."

Four—That it counsel religious groups to refrain from the "undesirable practice" of bidding competitively for broadcast time on a paid basis, so that groups with limited budgets are "not either excluded from the air or are relegated to marginal time."

The denomination, having some 226,000 communicant members in 845 congregations, is one of 39 constituent communions in the National Council of Churches.

Earlier, the general synod paid official tribute to the fact that it was just 125 years ago that its Board of Foreign Missions sent out its first missionary.

In honor of the memory of John Scudder, missionary to India, an address was delivered by the Rt. Rev. David Chellappa, bishop of Madras, Church of South India, who presented the greetings of his one-million member church.

Dr. Daniel Y. Brink, missions board president, read anniversary greetings from sister churches in Formosa, the Philippines, and other lands.

Dr. Brink also reported that his agency had an income of $1,243,000 during 1956. The board now has 165 missionaries serving in India, Japan, the Philippines, Formosa, Hong Kong, Singapore, Arabia, Iraq and the Sudan.

Seventeen new missionaries were dedicated at the 151st meeting of the General Synod.

Perry Como Praised By Band Leader

By Leonard Randolph
PERRY COMO is probably the greatest guy in show business to work with.

You have the word of his orchestra leader, Mitchell Ayres, for that.

Ayres was one of the top show biz names at Shawnee Inn yesterday for the annual Song Pluggers Golf Tournament.

According to Ayres, "the Como show is one of the pleasantest you could ever hope to be on." The orchestra leader said things are relaxed, friendly and very cooperative on the Como TV stint.

"I've been with Perry 10 years now. That's pretty good in this business," Ayres said. He continued:

"There isn't much that's new you can say about Perry. Most of it's been said before hundreds of times.

"Like the way I got the job as his orchestra leader on the show. We had played golf three times. The third time around I was stuck in a sand trap and I was sweating that out.

Deal "All of a sudden Perry looks down at me and says: You wanna do the show with me?"

"I looked up and said: Yeah. He said: Okay.

"That's all there was to it. I've been doing the show ever since."

Como was unable to come down for the 1957 tournament. Yesterday was Como's wife's birthday.

Ayres said, and he wanted to spend the day with her. "It's the first time he's missed it and it's too bad the tournament fell on this day," he said.

The Daily Record delegation expressed its own regrets that Como couldn't come. Jim Riley said it was too bad because we'd thought about getting a picture of Como and Jackie Gleason together, just for a gag shot, now that the rating race between the two was top show biz news.

Ayres said it had been done before, three years ago. But like most things where Como and Gleason are concerned, a little repetition wouldn't hurt. The two men were modern legends by this time. And they both wear well.

Television, Radio, Music Personalities Enjoy Golf Outing In Pocono Mountains

By Leonard Randolph
SHAWNEE—Ed Sullivan's normally unsmiling countenance broke into a wide-screen grin.

Fred Waring drove up to the edge of the first tee in his brand-new German-made sports car and climbed out. He was wearing an equally broad smile.

Julius LaRosa leaned back adroitly on his golf club as someone said for the dozenth time: "Would ya mind if I posed for a pitchah with ya Julie?" LaRosa cooperated willingly and the shot was made.

The occasion was the annual Song Pluggers Golf Tournament at Shawnee Inn. The host was Fred Waring. The crowd was in a remarkably relaxed mood.

Things never really got started until about noon. Until then Sullivan and the others puttered about on the practice green, gathered in small groups and talked and laughed together. It was something like a family reunion.

Some of the men at Shawnee yesterday have known each other for years. Shawnee pro Harry Obitz said he had known Nick Kenny (a song and verse writer who also serves as New York mirror entertainment columnist) for 12 years and "if Nick wants to yell at me, he can." Obitz spent a few minutes helping Kenny perfect his swing.

A not-too-innocent bystander watched the demonstration and remarked: "You get some of that royalty money outta your hip pocket, Kenny and maybe you wouldn't have so much trouble with the swing."

Sullivan and Waring were the main points of interest among bystanders. One of them asked Sullivan if he hadn't lost weight. Sullivan grinned, ducked his head, took a practice swing in the air and said: "Nope. I always stay about 146. When I lose weight, I lose it in my cheekbones; when I put it on it stays in my face anyway."

There was less clowning around the tee when Sullivan, Waring and top golfer Howard Everett were on. Sullivan clipped off a hard, fast drive. It went straight down the broad expanse of the graciously-rolling green fairway in a smooth graceful arc, hit the ground, bounced six times and rolled to a stop in near-perfect position a few feet from the edge of the small creek which courses through the first part of the course.

Waring stepped up to the tee. Assistant pro Ronnie Ward, who announces the names of players as they come up, said: "Next on the tee—Mr. Fred Waring, your host." A round of applause greeted the owner of the Inn.

Waring thrust the tee in the turf, turned slightly to the onlookers behind him and said: "What do I get if I hit it?" His swing was quick and "neat" one of the audience said. The ball went slightly to the right and bounced incorrigibly toward a slight, sloping cut which traps some starters.

With a broad grin, Waring turned to Sullivan and said: "I may have to have that filled in."

The general atmosphere was like that all through the early portion of the tournament. This annual affair which Waring has built into a music-makers holiday is designed for relaxation and golf—good, bad or indifferent, but preferably better as each year goes by.

Jackie Gleason took off early yesterday morning to do his 18 holes. Before going he posed for pictures with Sullivan in a golf buggy; cracked that "the title of this picture better be 'fun at Shawnee,'" and cast a kindly eye upon the photographer. As Sullivan was whisked off in the machine, Gleason yelled after him: "See you at the clinic, Ed."

Much of the humor came from the lesser lights at the music men's tournament. There was, for example, a genuine sardonic comic who seldom gets star billing (he's not really a full-time comedian) named Bernie Pollock. Bernie's

Salesmen Using Names Of Area Ministers

AN EAST Stroudsburg minister's wife said last night that a "group of salesmen peddling Bibles door to door" is illegally using names of local clergymen.

Mrs. William F. Wunder, wife of the pastor of Grace Lutheran Church, said that the salesmen are "charging $40 or more" for the Bibles "and we can get Bibles for our people for $10."

Mrs. Wunder said she had registered a complaint with police that the salesmen were using the name of her husband and the names of Rev. Harold C. Eaton, Methodist pastor and Rev. Norman R. Savage, Baptist minister in East Stroudsburg.

The minister's wife said that this use was completely unauthorized. Mrs. Wunder said that the "usual approach" is for the salesman to "come into the house, ask what your religious faith is and then say that the pastor of a church of that denomination has seen 'our Bible' and thinks it is the most beautiful he's ever seen."

Mrs. Wunder said that ordinarily the men agree to take a $5 deposit and mail the Bible to the person later.

$13,090 Subscribed To Date In YMCA Building Drive

DIRECTORS of the Monroe County YMCA heard a financial report on the special building fund campaign held in May at their June meeting last night in the YMCA.

E. Holt Wyckoff, campaign chairman, reported $13,090 had been subscribed to date with $7,495 of the amount being received in cash. The remaining $5,595 is in pledges.

Added to the $13,090 subscribed is the sum of $1,248.76, representing the YMCA's share of the May 30 show presented by Fred Waring and the Pennsylvaniaans. In reporting this figure, J. L. Cohen said 713 attended the first performance and 892 the second.

Gross receipts were given as $4,125.50. Waring shared $250 of the advertising expense and received 60 per cent of the balance. The YMCA's expenses included advertising, tickets and other printing, stage hands, electricians and parking. East Stroudsburg State Teachers College donated the auditorium.

Wyckoff said there were hopes that another five to six thousands dollars will be subscribed if the individuals and companies which were contacted during the campaign contribute the amounts sought from them to help wipe out a $33,000 building fund indebtedness. This would push the total amount raised to about $20,000, the chairman said.

The directors approved a contract with E. M. Rinehart for the rental of a 66-passenger bus to the Day Camp at Saylors Lake from June 20 and Aug. 4. The bus will also be used to take girls to their camp, also on a daily basis. The YMCA will pay $500.

to Rinehart at the beginning of the period and $500 at the close of camp with the option of buying the bus by paying $6,500 instead of the final $500. The YMCA must provide the driver, buy the gas and oil, insurance and pay for normal upkeep.

The board renewed its lease with the Day Care School for the use of the lower floor of the old gymnasium for another year. At the YMCA suggestion, the school's sponsors agreed to pay $5 more per month to cover increased costs for heating and taking care of the school's quarters.

John R. Wilson, general secretary, reported the Ladies Auxiliary is sponsoring the Miss Pocono Mountains contest in the East Stroudsburg State Teachers College auditorium next Tuesday and that eight girls have entered as contestants.

Wilson said 60 boys have enrolled in each of the three periods of Day Camp and that the stay-at-home camp has registered more than 30 younger children for the first four weeks of its six weeks' schedule. The YMCA will provide bus transportation to the building for those children living in East Stroudsburg and vicinity.

The secretary reported that Nancy May and Pat McDonough, both graduates of ESSTC, had been hired as activity supervisors for the Summer.

Hasty decisions at a time of sorrow makes clear thinking extremely difficult. Avoid this by making your selection now.

Lifting Standards Best Solution

Dr. LeRoy J. Koehler spoke before the Kiwanis Club recently on some of the problems facing the East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, of which he is president.

One of the problems in the ever-increasing pressure being put on present facilities by the growing enrollment and the heavy demand for new admissions.

It has been necessary, he said, to reject all applicants for admission who do not measure up to a certain standard in a written examination and series of personal interviews with department heads.

Applications continue to pour in, however, and Dr. Koehler indicated it might be necessary to raise the requirements to guarantee admission to all worthy applicants.

This approach to meeting the problem is, we believe, better than the one suggested by Dr. Charles H. Boehm, state superintendent of public instruction.

He requested the state's 14 teachers colleges to refuse admission to new students from outside Pennsylvania. This aroused some resentment among STC administrators because the matter was not first taken up with the board of presidents.

Some of the schools had already closed their enrollments for next year. They hardly can be expected to turn down students already notified of their acceptance. With hundreds of Pennsylvanians attending colleges outside the Commonwealth, the Department of Public Instruction should weigh the possibility of a similar restriction by other states against Pennsylvanians.

Figures quoted by the Harrisburg Patriot, "for what they are worth," show that 222 new college graduates entered Pennsylvania from other states to teach during the 1955-56 school year and 322 this past year. Also, 227 of the 2,377 STC students who graduated in 1954 went into teaching in other states.

We feel the state should drop its request and let the teachers colleges set their own high standards for admission. The quality of future teachers will be raised under such a plan and the state will benefit to a greater degree than by banning out-of-date students.

Most Crashes Mistakes Not Accidents

Are automobile crashes accidents or mistakes?

This question is asked by Bill Dyer, editor of the Shamokin News-Dispatch in a new avenue of attack on the rising highway toll.

Accident now has such a broad meaning it has lost much of its descriptive punch. The word usually brings a feeling of excuse for the person involved.

Actually, few traffic crashes are accident in the pure sense of the word. Most crashes are the result of mistakes. Mistakes are a more personal matter and few people like to have their mistakes made public.

Where a person now involved in a crash commonly referred to as an accident receives sympathy, that same person would have a different response if the crash were listed as a mistake.

Most traffic mishaps are caused by one of three things: speeds unsuited to conditions, following other vehicles too closely, or unsafe passing. All are common errors, sometimes of actual commission, other times of judgment.

Last year, 1,790 men, women and children were killed in crashes on the streets and highways of Pennsylvania. If every driver were to realize that most of these were the direct result of mistakes, we are confident fewer fatalities would occur in the years to come.

George Sokolsky Says...

Today's Police Must Be Well Educated, Specially Trained To Deal With Criminals

It used to be that the cop on the beat was a big, fat fellow, usually of Irish extraction, who was friendly, good to children, and who had a tough time chasing a pickpocket or what was called in those days a second-story man.

Today, the police of a big city have to deal with criminals who do big business, often running into hundreds of millions of dollars. They have to deal with human beings who have been so crushed by life that they have become psychological and sociological problems.

The punks and crumbos who are set up by the big criminals for arrests are really not worth bothering about. To get the big boys involves knowledge, astuteness, training and even then there is no assurance that a narcotics banker will not be sprung by a so-called liberal-minded judge who is only liberal to criminals.

New York City, with a population of 8,000,000 and affecting a metropolitan area of perhaps 20,000,000 is naturally a center of big crime. The other center is Chicago and a third in New Orleans. But that does not mean that big criminals are situated only in the localities where they work. Lucky Luciano continues to operate the narcotic cartel in the United States although he lives in Naples, Italy, which is not many hours away by airplane.

A police department that faces that kind of a criminal world cannot depend any longer on good-natured cops on the beat to catch criminals, although the cop on the beat is needed for other purposes.

The new style policeman needs to know law and accounting and languages and in our polyglot big cities some history and sociology. The FBI Academy is the idea of all police academies. The New York Police Academy is associated with the Bernard M. Baruch School of Business and Public Administration of the City College of New York.

The present police commissioner of New York, a tough cop, some think too tough, has a B.S. and an LL.B.; the inspector who is the commanding officer of the Police Academy, Robert R. J. Gallati, has a B.S. and LL.B. and an LL.M. He is also a graduate of the FBI Academy. I understand some 1268 members of the New York police force are college graduates, and when they go to the academy, they get a post-graduate course in police science.

In our large cities, the kind of foreign language most prevalent is constantly changing, but the older ones do not altogether die out. Today Spanish-speaking cops are required who not only are colloquially perfect but who have a broad knowledge of Latin American tongues and peoples.

It is not that the Puerto Ricans are criminals but they are a new element in the population who tend to gather in over-crowded cities and who present all the problems which each new wave of immigrants has presented. Thus, a police officer who is also a sociologist and has done special work in minority groups is an asset.

The old-fashioned idea of a cop with a club who splits a skull to put down a street fight is of no value today. Unfortunately, that type of cop, picturesque as he was, will not accomplish much in these days when madameans are of a different nature than a street fight and felonies are perpetrated by the keenest minds.

Whoever heard of a top member of a racket being in a street fight? More likely, he is dancing with a magnificent blonde in a night club or he is attending a charitable affair at $100 a ticket where only the genteel meet the genteel and each speaks about his own virtue.

So conscious have the police become of the vagaries of the law and the anxiety of the higher courts that the criminal's constitutional rights be protected that those who are given this academic instruction in New York are given courses in: The Constitution and Due Process; The Courts; Criminal Law and Modus Operandi; Municipal Law; Evidence.

Presumably similar courses are given in other cities where such academies have been organized. One effect of all this could be so to inhibit the policeman that he would be afraid to arrest anyone. But that could happen if one have many opinions like the one Justice Brennan handed down on the FBI files. That can destroy all police agencies.

INDUSTRIAL BLESSED EVENT?

Good Evening, Ladies!

Either Sex Can Become Fed Up With Kissing

Both Sexes Can Overdo Kissing

Just to show you how fallacious it is to generalize about the characteristics of any race, an Anglo-Saxon lady, a resident of London, has been hailed to court by her husband who seeks an injunction that will compel her to kiss him every night.

His wife, her husband charges, wants to kiss him every night, but she is so tired from chasing him all around London and kissing him in public places and, of all things, leaping from behind bushes and all but smothering him with smooches.

He is jolly well fed up with this sort of thing, humiliated and unhappy, and wants relief from the court. What his worship can do for this man I have no way of knowing, being unfamiliar with the domestic relations laws of Britain, but if he were over here I could do something. I'd see that he met a Mrs. So-and-So of the state of Nevada who just recently was hailed into court by her husband who charged that she hired a couple of hoodlums to shoot him because he, too, had the kissing habit in excess of what she considered reasonable.

These two should make a lovely couple and one can just imagine the preliminaries to any kiss that they could work out, such as, "Beg pardon, my dear, but would a kiss be acceptable at this time?" and the other saying, "Tomorrow at, say, half after four, my love, would be more convenient."

While willing to admit that enough of anything is enough, it seems to me that kissing is one thing that shouldn't pall. Personally, I'd be very happy to have a wife who, unarmed, of course, leaped at me from behind bushes with nothing more serious on her mind than a kiss. In fact, I wouldn't call the ladies if the lady were one I'd never seen before, so long as her face was clean. But I doubt that this will happen to me, although mine is a street of shrubbery and there are several rather charming ladies up and down the avenue.

However, there is a rather serious aspect to this subject and it concerns the strange metamorphosis that comes over the conubial kiss in too many cases. They are all right in the beginning, but after a while they have a tendency to cool off and become a sort of reflex, like a non-com saluting a superior officer automatically and without having to give it any thought.

A queer thing about the male's psychology is that he is inclined to believe that the more he loves his wife, the less he has to demonstrate it. Thus, he leaves the house in the morning after a perfunctory kiss at the door which leaves his wife no regret over his going. He greets her in the evening with the same gesture and then may wonder why she shows little joy over his return. He takes the attitude of some television performers who seem to think their audiences should be happy just to be looking at them and there is no obligation on their part to be entertaining.

Of course, there may be details of these two cases cited above that were not given in the news dispatches, the wire services being sort of prissy about such things, but I believe that in both instances the difficulties could have been ironed out without court action. All that would be needed is a bit of imagination and ingenuity. They could have made a game of it and had a lot of laughs.

Suppose this London gent, for example, had made an agreement with his wife that they would play a game called "Hunter and Quarry." There would be no kisses except while they were playing it. He could scamper around the garden, taking whatever shelter was offered, and she could stalk him. If she caught him, she'd get a kiss and five points. There would have to be rules, of course—no lying on overhanging limbs and dropping on the quarry, no traps or nets. If his legs are good, he shouldn't be over-kissed and she could work off some of that excess energy and might be more restrained in public places.

Try and Stop Me

—by Bennet Cerf

Track, the C. and O. magazine, tells about a greenhorn switchman in a small Missouri town who was helping to move empty freight cars down a spur to a big manufacturing plant's dock. A switch led to an unused track which ended in backwaters of the Mississippi river.

The greenie unwittingly threw the switch to this unused spur. A foreman later yelled, "How many more cars will this spur hold?" The greenie boomed back, "If they all go where the first eight went, mister, you can keep pushing cars down here all night!"

Robert S. Allen Reports

Pentagon Snafus Revealed In Girard Investigation

Washington, June 11: The background of that secret Senate decision for a full-scale investigation of the Girard case is as extraordinary as the public furor over it.

Two unusual factors precipitated this dynamite-lodged move. Before Republican Senator Gordon Allott, Colo., introduced his resolution for the sweeping probe, he was assured of the support of both Democratic and Republican leaders of the powerful Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees.

These influential senators approved Allott's proposal after hearing about a series of astonishing Pentagon snafus—highly reminiscent of those which embroiled Army officials in the uproarious clash with the late Senator Joe McCarthy.

One amazing detail learned by these senators was that Army Specialist 3/c William Girard was ordered turned over to the Japanese for trial without the knowledge or approval of either Secretary Wilson or Secretary Dulles.

Their first word about this explosive edict came from a Tokyo press report. Minor Pentagon and State Department officials, below policy-making levels, had blandly gone ahead and taken this step without bothering to inform their superiors.

The senators were also informed that it was President Eisenhower who in the end determined to let this disruptive ruling stand. He did that on the ground there had been too many reversals already.

The potent bipartisan group backing Allott's demand for an investigation includes Senators Theodore Green (D., R. I.), chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee; Richard Russell (D., Ga.), chairman of the Armed Services Committee; Ralph Flanders (R., Vt.) and Sam Ervin, Jr. (D., N. C.), also of that Committee.

Green has asked Secretaries Dulles and Wilson to formally advise the Foreign Relations Committee of their position on Allott's proposal.

Amazing Story—The sequence of backstage Pentagon events in the Girard case is a tangle of conflicting pronouncements and bumbles.

This series of muddles, as pieced together by these senators, is as follows:

From the start, all Army authorities, from Secretary Brucker to Girard's commanding officer, have vigorously opposed turning him over to the Japanese. Throughout they have held the unfortunate soldier was on duty, and all action regarding it was properly within Army jurisdiction.

While Eighth Army was studying the affair for possible court-martial, the Japanese took the issue to the Joint U. S.-Japanese Board, which the peace treaty set up to settle disputes. The Board promptly ducked. The two Japanese representatives voted that Girard be tried by their courts; the two American representatives (one each from the State and Defense Departments) opposed that.

All this was reported to the Pentagon. There the case was sent to Robert Dechert, general counsel of the Defense Department, for a legal opinion—presumably.

Instead, two officers, one from the Army and the other a Marine, took matters into their own hands.

After some informal discussions with other minor officials in the State Department, and without any word to Secretary Wilson, these two officers brushed aside all the Army's arguments regarding its prior authority over Girard.

Eighth Army was directed to turn him over to the Japanese for trial.

When Tokyo press reports of this unannounced decree exploded in the upper reaches of the Pentagon, Secretary Brucker rushed to Wilson with a vehement protest. The Defense chief ruefully admitted he hadn't known a thing about it.

But Wilson heartily agreed with Brucker that the order was "outrageous."

Whereupon Wilson countermanded it, with his "freeze order" that Girard be retained by the Army pending further study of the controversy.

But in some still unexplained manner, Wilson's reversal didn't reach Tokyo in time.

By the time it got there, the American soldier had been formally turned over to the Japanese. The document for that had been signed and sealed, and the deed was done on the authority of the General Counsel of the Defense Department.

When questioned by Senators Ervin and Flanders, General Counsel Dechert admitted the decision had been made in his office and Wilson had not been told of it.

Still to be established is whether Dechert himself knew about it.

The senators have been told the former Philadelphia lawyer was also in ignorance of the action of his two subordinates. They didn't apprise him of it, either.

When Wilson learned his "freeze order" had gone awry, he got in touch with Secretary Dulles. Both agreed the President should be consulted.

Dulles advised against another reversal. He argued the reaction would be extremely bad in Japan; that it might precipitate anti-American riots similar to those on Formosa. Wilson related what had happened in his general counsel's office, and explained the Army's opposition to the Japanese trying Girard.

The President sided with Dulles, and directed Wilson to countermand his countermanding "freeze order" not to turn Girard over to the Japanese.

Things Almost At Normal Pace Again

By Jim Riley

Now that things are returning to something like a normal situation and the Riley household has been blessed with a third youngster—its time to return to work.

The nerves are settled once again, and excuses for acting "strange" are no longer accepted. Oh, yes—baby and mother are both doing very well.

The new arrival, to be known as Thomas John, weighed in at nine pounds, 10½ ounces and was 22 inches long.

Tom joins Barbara and Joe in the Riley lineup. Babs is the cheerleader, while here's hoping Joe and Tommy will someday hold down a spot in baseball or basketball or football.

Meanwhile, we better dream up some more words or all three will be going to work almost immediately.

Ed Sullivan, the famed television figure, was recognized easily by the guards at the Delaware River Bridge on Monday night.

Ed's at Shawnee enjoying the Song Pluggers' outing.

Charley Allen, well known policeman, came face to face with an unexpected situation on Monday when an automobile stalled in the middle of the Fifth and Main St. intersection.

Smooth action by Allen, and the assistance of an unidentified truck driver, who later got the car running, saved the situation from becoming quite entangled.

We won't tell who was driving the stalled automobile.

Calvin Kresge, Tannersville, was a spectator at the Cincinnati-Brooklyn doubleheader on Sunday.

He was more than a little pleased that the Redlegs swept the bargain bill.

Ed and June Getz, Henryville, RD, became the parents of a son at the General Hospital on Sunday night. It is the fourth child for the Getz family and congratulations are in order.

An oddity appears in the fact that June and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Hayden "Bucky" Newhart, Tannersville, are both patients in the maternity ward at the present time.

The Newharts had a daughter on Saturday, while the Getz baby was born on Sunday.

Bob Youngkin, Pocono Manor, is battling an aching back at the present time.

But, the veteran electrician is winning the struggle.

Care Necessary In Cleaning Tile Stains

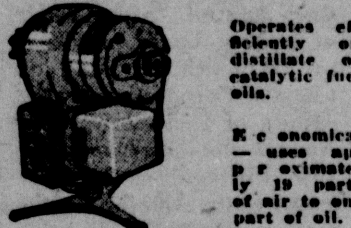

FOR THE most part, the tile on the walls and floors of bathrooms and kitchens can be cleaned with ordinary soap and water. If there is a stain or discoloration which won't respond to this treatment, more drastic action is necessary. Do not, however, use harsh abrasive cleaning powders on tile because they can ruin the finish.

Stubborn stains can be removed by washing the tile with a solution of one part hydrochloric acid dissolved in 10 parts water. Be careful to keep this solution off you and the mortar joints between the tile. After the stain is out, rinse the surface clean with plenty of fresh water.

When mortar joints between the tile become dirty, ordinary washing won't work because the mortar has absorbed the dirt and grime. Sometimes you can whiten the mortar joint by bleaching it out with an ordinary household bleach.

Stucco Finish On Homes May Be Cleaned

STUCCO, LIKE everything else in this world, sooner or later becomes dirty and then the question is whether it's easier to clean off the dirt or just cover it over. Cleaning stucco is the more difficult and time consuming but it's also the less expensive of the two.

The best way to clean stucco is to go over it first with a stiff fiber brush to remove all the loose dirt. Now dampen the surface and apply a 10 per cent solution of muriatic acid. This is made by adding one part acid to 10 parts water. After you've covered a section of the wall with the acid, scrub it with your fiber brush and then rinse with several applications of fresh water. Needless to say when you work with the acid wear rubber gloves, goggles and keep covered.

If you decide to paint, things are a lot easier. Go over the stucco with your stiff fiber brush to remove all the loose dirt and then apply the paint in the manner recommended by the manufacturer. Cement paints, stucco paints or exterior rubber base paints all work well on stucco. Painting has one other advantage over cleaning in that almost any kind of paint will seal up those small hair line cracks in the stucco which can grow larger if not filled in one way or another.

DESIGN A-450. Everything in this hip roof house has been planned for, as evidenced by the lavatory and closet at the rear entry. The utility room has a storage closet, sink and cabinets. A built-in oven and range are in the kitchen. The electric or gas incinerator placed in the heater room is readily accessible. The bedrooms have wardrobe type closets.

The simple construction calls for natural stone, casement type windows, wide horizontal siding and colorful asphalt shingles. Floor area is 1568 square feet, cubage is 18,032 cubic feet.

For further information about DESIGN A-450, write to the Small House Planning Bureau, St. Cloud, Minn. In Canada, the Small House Planning Bureau of Canada, St. John, New Brunswick.

Lacquers Now Available In Spray Guns

TOUGH, QUICK-drying lacquers in aerosol containers which act as spray guns are now available in many stores for home painting jobs.

For some time manufacturers of major home appliances, such as refrigerators, have been using lacquers in "bomb" type containers for touching up finishes that had been accidentally marred. New research now makes it possible to package any type of paint suitable for spraying in this automatic container.

The dispensers contain a coating material and a propellant. They are usually packaged in 12-ounce cylinders at a temperature low enough to keep the propellant in a liquid state. When warmed, it vaporizes and builds up pressure which drives the paint out of the can when a release valve is operated. The paint emerges as a fine spray. Two thin coats are recommended rather than a single heavy one.

Odors In Sewer

SEWER ODORS in a basement or utility room can be caused by water having evaporated from traps under the floor drain. The Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau says pouring at least a gallon of water into such drains often solves the problem.

Filler For Woodwork

ORDINARY sawdust mixed with a wood glue to form a paste makes a very good filler for woodwork. For very fine work the sawdust should be from the same kind of wood that is being repaired.

Prevent Splattering

BEFORE you hammer the lid of a paint can shut for a tight fit, cover can with a cloth to prevent splatter.

Lamp Shades Inexpensive To Make

YOU CAN have a glamorous new lamp shade for practically nothing.

This is how: Buy an inexpensive paper shade—or use old ones around the house.

Then make a skirt for the shade, using bits of ribbon or a gay cotton, net, lace or organdy. Your scrap bag will probably yield pieces that will be just the thing.

To make, hold the fabric to the shade for length, cut it two inches longer than the shade and big enough to fit easily around the widest part. Then finish with neat bias binding at the top, and plait, gathered ruffle or shirring at top and bottom. Tie a colored ribbon around it for a finishing touch.

Remove Floor Marks

MARKS left by composition heels on asphalt tile can be removed by rubbing lightly with a damp cloth and soap cleaning powder. The spot should then be rinsed with clear water—and re-waxed.

RECLAIM OLD PAINT BRUSHES

Beverly Gail McDowell

B. G. McDowell Entry In Talent Pageant

DANCING is the forte of Beverly Gail McDowell, and she will rely upon it in her quest for Miss Poccono Mountains.

The 18-year-old Stroudsburg High graduate will entertain the audience with a three-minute Hawaiian dance—in full costume. She has received training in piano as well as dance.

An attractive brunette, she carries 125 pounds on a 5-8½, 34-22-34 frame. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Byrd McDowell plans to attend East Stroudsburg State Teachers College this fall, and attend Bouve-Boston School to major in Physical Education.

Hobby
With swimming as her major hobby, and her proposed physical education major, it is not surprising that Miss McDowell won the Fishing Health award and the Intramural award at Stroudsburg High School this past year. Her penchant for health has led her to a presidency in the Girls' Varsity "S" club, secretary of the Mountaintettes, and membership in the Modern Dance, Intramural sports, Tri-Hi-Y, and the color guard at Stroudsburg High in addition to having belonged to the Mixed and Girls' Chorus, and the Senior Play.

The pageant will be held Tuesday, June 18, at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College Auditorium.

Post Office Department To Ban Use Of Small Envelopes

POSTAL AUTHORITIES here have been advised that the U. S. Post Office Department is serving two years' notice that small envelopes are on their way out.

Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield said the deadline was delayed to July 1, 1959 to give persons with large supplies of stationery on hand ample time to use it.

Letters smaller than 2½ inches by four inches will not be accepted by the Post Office Department under the new rule. The government is planning to purchase new canceling and sorting equipment, and letters must be of uniform size if the machinery is to be efficient, postal authorities said.

Automatic

One of the new machines is the transoma, an automatic letter sorter. The new canceling machine will also be automatic.

The department plans to introduce new 3½ by 6½ inches stamped envelopes next month. This is the same size as the most popular unstamped commercial envelopes.

At the same time, it will discontinue sale of two less popular stamped envelopes, one of which is 3½ by 6 5/16 inches and the other 3½ by 6½ inches.

Dent To Back License Fee

'Hi-Neighbors' Tickets To Be On Sale

EVEN THOUGH "all printed advance tickets have been sold" for the Thursday night performance of "Hi-Neighbors" by the Karen Roth School of Performing Arts, those who wish to attend may buy tickets at the door of East Stroudsburg State Teachers College auditorium on the night of the performance, Mrs. Roth said last night.

The Thursday night show benefits the Day Care Training Center. It is an all-new edition of the show the Roth School presented two years ago.

In this year's program, Mrs. Roth said yesterday, she and the students have attempted to produce a group of new numbers which have deeper meaning and greater artistic content than in past years.

School Director

The school director notes that "the pupils have continued to grow during the past two years and we have tried to meet the challenge of artistic maturity with greater meaning and depth."

There will still be a large number of dance selections designed for younger people and for those in the audience who prefer traditional dance routines, Mrs. Roth said. Thursday's program begins at 8:15 p. m. in the college auditorium.

Bangor Board Tentatively Adopts Budget

BANGOR — The Bangor Area Joint School Board tentatively adopted a $505,880 budget for the 1957-58 school year, last night.

Of that total, 73 percent or $370,050 will be paid out for costs of instruction, including teachers' salaries. Total budget will be shared by the three districts in this proportion: Bangor—$319,480; Roseto—$50,700 and Lower Mount Bethel Township—$74,700.

The 1956-57 budget was adopted last year at a total of $485,166.50. The board heard a report last night, however, that expenditures will total about $3,000 below this figure at the end of the current year.

Estimate

This estimate was listed as $482,595. It was noted that, in the event social security is established for professional employees of the district, that an item of $8,500 which has been tentatively placed in the current budget will be the school district's share for payment covering one percent in 1956, one and a quarter percent in 1957 and the same amount in 1958.

One budgetary item was reduced over $20,000 in the new budget when it was established that $25,000 for plant maintenance was listed in the 1957-58 budget as opposed to $45,550 in the 1956-57 budget. David Stoddard, Bangor, was formally elected treasurer of the joint district. The tentative budget will be formally adopted at a meeting of the joint board on July 17.

First-Stroudsburg National Bank Grows With Community During 100 Years Of Operation

By Bill Berry
(Third In A Series)

THE First-Stroudsburg National Bank today is an efficiently run large organization. It has a $500,000 capitalization, quite an improvement over either of its progenitors—which were formed with $100,000 capital each. Its total assets climb over $12 million.

Yet, there is a danger which often accompanies rapid growth, especially in a smaller community—that the organization will lose the personal touch, will become, in short, too big.

The First-Stroudsburg Bank has not let this happen in its 100 years of organization, an anniversary which is being celebrated this week.

Both president Frank Stackhouse and cashier H. P. Merring are always available to any businessman or depositor who has a financial problem. The 26 employees currently working in various capacities are as courteous as the seven who ran the bank when Stackhouse first began working there in 1915.

The building, which occupies the northeast corner of Main and S. Seventh Sts., is a study of airy, clean interior and imposing exterior. It is not a home office of the Chase-Manhattan Bank, and makes no attempt to be. It is a large bank in a growing community, and has expanded and modernized to keep pace.

Both Merring and Francis R. Drake, the assistant cashier, are quiet, knowledgeable men, highly competent bank officials with the facts and figures of their operations on the tips of their fingers. Stackhouse is a man who, being born and raised in Monroe County, has never lost his friendly touch on his way to the top. A soft-spoken, friendly man, he had held the presidency since 1944.

The son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William E. and Almada Stackhouse, he first saw the light of day in Neola on July 29, 1888. He was graduated from Stroudsburg High in 1907, and took a position with the Erie Railroad as a material clerk and then as a stenographer. In 1910 he left them to occupy a position in the Stroudsburg Engine Works which he describes as "the office manager of a one-man office. Just the bookkeeper, I guess."

In 1911, he married the former Leila Heller, and they lived in Stroudsburg as he continued to work for the Engine works for another four years.

An opening as a stenographer presented itself in the Stroudsburg National Bank in 1915, and he began what was to become his life's occupation. Eight years later he became the cashier, and he was the executive vice-president in 1932 when the merger went into effect. In 1944, the call to the presidency came, and he's maintained the position for the last 13 years.

His daughter, Mrs. William S. Wyckoff, has presented him with three grandchildren, with whom he occupies himself when not putting in a long day at the bank. (Last in the series)

Monroe County Civil Defense In Process Of Launching Organizational, Training Program

MONROE COUNTY Council of Civil Defense is now in the process of launching a county-wide organizational and training program in Rescue Operations, according to M. Eugene Leffler, chief of the county CD Rescue Division.

Leffler revealed that the State Council of Civil Defense has made available to Monroe County one of its large sized rescue trucks, completely equipped with the finest in modern rescue equipment. This truck is to be used for instructional purposes in the course now being organized.

At a recent Civil Defense meeting attended by local officials concerned with the program, a rescue course was outlined which will closely follow the State and Federal Civil Defense prescribed course and carry full certification in Rescue Operations. Present at this meeting were the following: M. Eugene Leffler, coordinator of Rescue Operations; John M. Smith and David F. Smith, chief instructors from the Tohoyanna Signal Depot; Marvin E. Abel, coordinator of Fire Departments; Paul M. Crawn, county executive director; and the following rescue instructors: Earl E. Palmer, Arthur L. Reisenwitz, Donald Hewing and James Rinehart.

Paul Crawn, executive director, said that present plans call for a fully trained chief of Rescue Operations and an assistant chief in every township and borough control center within the county. This, he said, local CD officials felt was one of the most urgent needs of county Civil Defense. This present course, he indicated, would be of special interest to members of fire departments, which under the existing status, are essentially rescue organizations as well as fire fighting units. Also, Harold Hosier, coordinator of the Boat Rescue Division, said that members of his organization are currently planning to take the course.

Included in the Rescue Operations course will be the following: Organization and Function of Rescue Operations; Care and Use of Equipment—including First Aid equipment, rope, ladders, lifting devices, gas masks, cutting tools and lighting equipment; Rescue Techniques—lashing, rigging, slings, etc.; Casualty Handling; Computation of Damage to Buildings and Utilities; and Squad Operations.

Local county officials point out that the class must be limited to 26 men, exclusive of the instructors. Township and borough directors are therefore urged to register their candidates for the course as soon as possible. Registration, they said, will close on June 18 and the Rescue Operations course will begin on June 20.

Porter CIA Studies Tax, Civic Matters

Porter Township—The necessity and advantages of tax equalization were stressed at a well-attended meeting of the Porter Township CIA at the Porter Twp. School on Wednesday night. Ted Altan said that the tax equalization program is the only fair method of taxation, and did not necessarily mean an increase in taxes.

Other community projects were also discussed at the meeting, including 4-H Club and the new Boy Scout Reservation at Resica and the Cancer drive.

Mrs. Dorothy Raitt, 4-H leader, summarized their plans for the summer. The next meeting was held last night at the school.

Director West of the Boy Scouts Reservation at Resica Falls outlined planned development this summer at the falls and invited the group for a tour of inspection. They set their first Fall meeting, September 11, to accept the invitation when they will have swimming, fishing, cards, music and refreshments.

Mrs. Helen Young, it was announced, will head the cancer drive in the section this year and will accept contributions either by mail or at her home. H. Engler, Greeley, president of the Pike Co. Republican Club invited the group to a meeting to be held at the school on Thursday, June 27, at 8 p.m.

Cards, games and refreshments followed the business meeting. Bob Collins, East Stroudsburg; Herb Young, Pickering Inn; and Mrs. Thuroff, Lake Minisink, were winners at cards.

Others present were Arch Bush, Ludleville; William Meilich, Standing Stone; Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Raitt, Sr., Edgemere; Mr. and Mrs. N. W. and Mr. and Mrs. H. Miller, Resica Falls; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Freitz, The Notch; Mrs. Violetta Keifer, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Foreman, Mrs. W. Thuroff, Arthur Weaver, Lake Minisink; Dorothy Raitt, Charlotte Raitt, Ronald and Phyllis Smith, Hunter's Range, William Bradshaw, Mrs. Doc. Collins, Pine Flats; Mr. and Mrs. Herb Young, Pickering Inn; Mr. Mosier, Peck's Pond; Mr. and Mrs. Bob Collins, Valerie and Gay Collins, East Stroudsburg; Mr. and Mrs. Ted Alton, Saw Creek; Mr. and Mrs. H. Engler, Greeley.

Dorothy Raitt, Helen Young and Irene Foreman were hostesses. Mrs. West, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Raitt and Mrs. Foreman will serve as hostesses at the September meeting at Resica.

Installation Of Officers At Y-Gradale

The last regular Y-Gradale meeting, for the 1956-57 year, was held on Monday, June 10 in the Ladies' Lounge of the YMCA.

Mrs. Robert Shaw was installed as new president of the chapter. She will be assisted by Mrs. Harry Congdon, vice-president, Mrs. Paul Mannix, secretary and Mrs. Gail Fegley, treasurer.

Welcomed to the chapter as official members following their induction were: Mrs. Russell Bergman, Mrs. R. E. Duncan, Mrs. Louis Carmella, Mrs. J. Reinhold, Mrs. Charles Greiner, and Mrs. Donald Cramer.

The installation of officers and induction of new members were conducted by Mrs. James Detrick, retiring president, Mrs. Anthony Quaresimo, retiring vice-president, Mrs. Frank Melvin, retiring secretary, Mrs. Eugene Hippler, retiring treasurer, Mrs. Russell Scheller, immediate past state president.

Mrs. Detrick presented the president's gavel to Mrs. Shaw and expressed her gratitude to all committee chairmen, fellow officers and members for their cooperation during her term of office.

Mrs. Scheller, in behalf of the chapter, thanked Mrs. Detrick for her tireless efforts and many accomplishments benefiting the chapter under her leadership.

A report on the Eastern District Y-Gradale rally held in Jim Thorpe, Pa. on Sunday, May 26, was given by Mrs. Detrick and Mrs. Scheller, who represented the local chapter. Mr. Terry Osborne, World Service representative, who recently returned from Seoul, Korea, was the main speaker.

The picnic committee reported that the affair will be held on Wednesday, July 17, at the Stroudsburg Playground. Members and their families are invited to attend. The gathering will begin around 2:00 p.m. and the picnic supper will be served at 6:00 p.m. Each member is requested to bring table service for her own family.

Mrs. Robert Shaw announced formative plans for the Fall Fashion Show. Details and tickets will be distributed at the family picnic in July.

Following the meeting, refreshments were served by Mrs. Donald Cramer, Mrs. Robert Shaw, and Mrs. Russell Scheller.

THE Wyckoff SHOPPER

Bright and early as it was when I appeared at the big glass door of the First-Stroudsburg National Bank Monday morning, I was not the first to arrive. The custodian was there, keys a-jangle, greeting me with a proud 100th Anniversary smile. . . . so was John Watt, the bank's director of public relations. Frank L. Stackhouse, president, was already seated behind his desk in an office to the left of the entrance. I also brushed against a strange woman dressed in an unusual, but strikingly beautiful, floor-length gown of brown, standing to the left of the door. As I peered around her head-fringing parasol to offer an apology, I observed that she was quite oblivious of my presence. She was a particularly early lifelike mannequin made by Marcia Clapp, our distinguished Bushkill artist, who had created her from—of all things—flour paste, chicken wire, some old copies of the New York Times, paint, and a wealth of know-how.

This lovely "lady" was about to open a swinging gate into a most convenient alcove at the right of the main entrance, where five other "ladies" had already assembled for tea. Marcia was down on her knees, planning, arranging, and placing the finishing touches upon their gorgeous gowns from Paris that date from 1857, and are part of her own fabulous collection. "I've had more fun," she trilled, eyes-a-sparkle. "Aren't they just precious in these old costumes? This creation is the Anti-Bellum of 1857 with drop shoulders—the material, green faille. And don't miss the adorable pillbox hat tied under her chin."

A grey taffeta dress with red bonnet showed a trace of bustle which was coming into popularity around 1867. The year 1877 is represented by the hour glass silhouette. . . . In 1887, as Marcia pointed out, "bustles were really bustin' out all over." The year 1897 produced a gorgeous white satin evening gown. . . . 1907 was the year of the black net, generously spangled with glittering jet sequins . . . and the hostess, presiding at her tea table, was wearing a blue quilted satin hostess gown rich with cascading cream lace.

The lovely old melodeon, oil paintings, tiny tables, and other accessories so beautifully combined by Marcia in the background of her display, were loaned by Mona and Frank Fitzgerald of Briarheath Antiques, Snyder'sville, and by Miss Hilda Wells of Bushkill. Marcia told me her mother, Betty, an artist in her own right, had made the cookies that looked so tempting on the tea table. Mrs. Clapp also proved her daughter's "right hand man" by creating the hands of all the lifelike figures. . . . a truly masterful job.

But back to the 100th anniversary celebration itself. (Wouldn't you just know a woman would get sidetracked by FASHIONS, even on such an important occasion?) It was my very great honor to have been invited, as The Wyckoff Shopper, to present the first of the anniversary broadcasts from the lobby. I loved doing it. . . . and certainly there was no shortage of things to discuss. I could have talked for hours about the displays alone. . . . not only Marcia's, but Henry Tucker's loan exhibit of paper notes, dating back to colonial days . . . and the collected mementos of the bank, showing the photographs of early executives, the first bank notes, the petition drawn up in an impressive handwriting requesting that a bank be authorized here in Stroudsburg, and the treasured old ledger detailing the first day's business.

On the program with me were Mr. Stackhouse, who has been the bank's president since 1944. . . . his son-in-law, William Wyckoff, a member of the board who is also vice president of A. B. Wyckoff, as well as chairman of arrangements for the 100th anniversary celebration . . . and Mr. Watt. It was really amazing, I think, how much ground we covered in fifteen fleeting minutes. We talked about the bank's history . . . the beautiful lobby of Italian and Tennessee marble with its gorgeous painting of the Delaware Water Gap by the late Cullen Yates . . . the many gifts the bank is giving this week . . . the open house coffee hours and teas . . . the 50-in., 20-lb. candle to be lighted Friday afternoon, with customers invited to guess the duration of its burning time . . . the handsome bouquets from well wishers, and the three-tier cake which is only a very clever facsimile of the real cake to be served later. But drop by and see for yourself! Then visit Wyckoff's—another deservedly famous business enterprise that has served our county 92 exciting years.

MORGAN (Weasel) Jones, the man who shunned Scranton for a life in the Poconos, is anxious to watch Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson work out at Harry's Farm, near Columbia, N. J.

The "Weasel" says, "I like colorful sports figures, and to say the least, Hurricane is the top in this department."

Jones plans to glimpse Jackson in drills next week when the Hurricane starts serious workouts for his championship bout with heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson.

Bobby Kassner, East Stroudsburg High's good little second baseman the past two seasons, is working this summer in the clubhouse at Shawnee Country Club.

Bobby is attending to the equipment under clubhouse boss Rocky Coco, a mainstay at the Delaware River layout since Hector was a pup.

Jerry Stulgaitis, Stroudsburg High's affable baseball coach, will stick strictly to diamond chores at the West Main St. school next year.

Stulgaitis recently handed in his resignation as junior high football coach.

No successor has been named but it is expected that either Wilmont Smith or Charley Winters will get the post.

Frank Lupin, one of the finest halfbacks ever to wear East Stroudsburg High football jersey, is headed toward East Stroudsburg State Teachers fall.

Lupin, Jack Kist's Cavalier clutch man last season on offense also is rated one of the best defensive backs in area schoolboy circles.

Wherever Warriors grid boss Eugene Martin decides to use the recent Eastburg graduate, there is no doubt that ESSTC will have a topflight performer.

John Wernett, secretary of the Pocono Mountain Baseball League, will release the rosters of the 10 teams tomorrow.

Wernett, a Saylorsburg resident, compiled the rosters of each nine after managers turned in their complete lists two weeks ago.

Art Wall, Pocono Manor's traveling golf professional, continued his money-making on the play-for-pay this weekend when he pulled in $930 as his share of the booty in the Akron, Ohio, Rubber City Open.

Art, a perennial prize-winner on the circuit this season, finished tied for fifth place in the tournament which saw Arnold Palmer, another favorite of local goldfod, grabbing the top prize of $2000.

It was only two weeks ago at the Manor course that Wall shot a five-under 66 and Palmer a par 73 in a benefit match for the Pennsylvania Heart Fund and Cancer Society.

Frank (Ram) Duffy, a graduate of East Stroudsburg State Teachers College back in the days of the normal school status, was given a Gold Pass by the PIAA's District Two Committee for service in the coaching field.

Duffy, who coached at Easton High before taking up mentorship at Dunmore High from 1925 to 1935, was among a number of District Two officials, faculty managers and coaches honored for having put in 20 years or more of service.

Robert Klenk, ex-ESSTC soccer player under Howard DeNiko in the late forties, has a new post. Klenk, who is supervising principal at Harford, Pa., school, has been named representative of the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association's Officials' Council.

Klenk's name now adorns the top list of officials in the PIAA's official news organ, The Pa-Thlete.

Penn State Ousts Notre Dame, 5-4

OHAMA, June 11 (UP)—Southpaw Ed Drapcho ended three hours and three minutes of pitching this afternoon by throwing out Notre Dame's Gene Duffy at first base to protect a 5-4 Penn State lead and out the Irish from the NCAA College World Series of baseball.

The Irish threatened to wipe out a 5-2 Penn State lead in the last of the ninth loading the bases on a single, Bob Seneca's third hit, a double and error, which produced two runs. Drapcho retired the next two batters on easy grounders and the third, dangerous Eugene Duffy, on an easy tap to the mound.

Methodists Tie For Lead In Eastburg

METHODIST Church moved back into a tie for first place in the East Stroudsburg Little League last night by besting Heller-Lloyd-Howell, 3-1, at 1.1 field.

the two-hit performance of the H-L-H hurler. Hughes was touched for six hits but kept them well scattered.

After H-L-H gained a 1-0 edge in the first inning, the Methodists came back with two in the second and got an insurance run in the fourth.

Counterman and Reese led the hitters against Hughes with two hits each, including a run-producer by Reese.

125,000 Expected To See Yank-Chisox Crucial Series

CHICAGO, June 11 (UP)—More than 125,000 fans may jam into Comiskey Park before the current three-game set between the first-place Chicago White Sox and second-spot New York Yankees ends Thursday.

But it's probably safe to say that Sox partisans will be slow making World Series plans, even if the White Sox take the set.

The Sox, from Manager Al Lopez on down, have been burned too often by the hated rivals from New York.

In 1951, the Sox held the American League top spot for 40 days, compared with their current 32-day stand at the head of the class.

But those 1951 Pale Hose wound up in fourth place, 17 games behind the pennant-winning Yankees.

It was just a year ago this month, the Sox swept a four-game series from the Yankees at Comiskey Park to climb within one game of first. But the Hose sagged and finished third for the fifth straight year, 12 games behind the champion Yankees.

Lopez, of course, is new on the Sox scene, but he has had bitter experience as a "Yankee-chaser" with the Cleveland Indians.

From 1951 through 1956—with the exception of Cleveland's 1954 pennant year—Lopez' Tribe ran second to the seemingly invincible Yankees.

The closest Senor Lopez came to rattling a sabre for the three-game series getting underway tonight was to say:

"From my experience, I know American League rivals would rather beat the Yankees than any other team. They anticipate New York. We all respect the Yankees, but none of us freeze up when we meet 'em."

Statistics show the Yankees have a 26-game margin over the White Sox in 132 played between the two clubs from 1951 until this year.

The Yanks are ahead, 80 to 52, for that span. In 1955, the two clubs divided 11-11. However, last year, it was 13-9 for the Yanks; in 1954, 15-7; in 1953, 13-9; in 1952, 14-8; and in 1951, 14-8.

For the first five meetings this year, the Yanks lead, 3-2. And its a long time from June to September.

Rand Pulls Upset In Women's Golf

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., June 11 (UP)—Marcia Rand of Ohio-Wesleyan today scored an upset in the 13th Women's Collegiate Golf Tournament, defeating Berridge Long of Marshall College 1-up in 19 holes.

Miss Long was a heavy favorite to win the match, having qualified yesterday with 83 while Miss Rand shot a 91.

Ann Rutherford, Penn State, defeated Lorraine Abbott, Rollins College, 5 and 4.

BROOKLYN, June 11 (UP)—Bobby Thomson, an old hand at killing the Dodgers, unloaded a grand-slam home run tonight as the Milwaukee Braves romped to a 7-2 victory over Brooklyn.

Score Given Okay To Start Drills July 15

CLEVELAND, June 11 (AP)—Pitcher Herb Score's injured right eye will be recovered sufficiently to permit the 24-year-old southpaw to resume baseball workouts on July 15, his doctor said today.

After examining Score's eye, which was struck by a line drive in a night game with the New York Yankees here May 7, Dr. Charles I. Thomas made this statement:

"Herb's condition is greatly improved and his eye has responded well to the medication prescribed for him. He will continue to be on this medication for another four weeks, during which period he should gradually regain his strength through limited activity."

"He should be able to resume his baseball workouts on July 15."

Medication
Score's medication includes a liquid applied to the injured eye with a dropper and some tablets taken internally. The dosages will be reduced gradually over the next few weeks, the eye specialist said.

The Cleveland Indians have missed their strikeout king sorely, and Score is anxious to return to duty.

He expects to leave on Thursday or Friday for his home in Lake Worth, Fla., and probably will remain there with his mother until he rejoins the baseball club in July.

Osborn, besides hurling near perfect ball, also led his mates at the plate with three hits. Ace also helped the winners with two hits.

L. David pitched the route for National Bank and was tagged with the mound loss.

BROOKLYN, June 11 (UP)—Bobby Thomson, an old hand at killing the Dodgers, unloaded a grand-slam home run tonight as the Milwaukee Braves romped to a 7-2 victory over Brooklyn.

Joe Adcock also walloped a home run in the Braves' 11-hit attack on loser Roger Craig and two relievers.

Ray Crone, 25, a right-hander, won his third against one defeat, pitching a comfortable nine-inning.

Stroudsburg Native To Head 7-Man Grid Coaching Staff

BEN JONES, graduate of East Stroudsburg High and East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, was appointed head football coach at Gettysburg High School.

Jones, recently named head grid coach at Lehigh after serving as top basketball and track boss of the Indians the past three years, will head a seven-man grid coaching staff which caters to three junior high schools, plus Gettysburg High.

The native of the vicinity expects to submit his resignation to Lehigh officials early next week and travel to Gettysburg to set up his grid program for the coming season.

Besides football, Jones also will coach the "Battlefielders" in baseball and head the school's social studies department.

Ben Jones

Jones, 33, succeeds Howard Shoemaker who recently was named assistant football coach at Gettysburg College.

Won Track Crown

At Lehigh, Jones coached the Indians cindermen to the Carbon County track title in 1956, and ran up a five year 59-won and 53-loss record while tutoring the Indians basketball representatives.

Prior to his coming to Lehigh, the one-time trainer for the Stroudsburg Poconos of the now-defunct North Atlantic Baseball League, led Brookville High in 1952 to its first football championship in 25 years and was named western Pennsylvania's "Coach of the Year" after leading an all-star team to victory in the annual DuBois Lions football classic in 1952.

Football Record

Jones will be returning to head football coaching for the first time since '32. However, he has a 10-year coaching grid coaching record—seven as head man—of 50 wins, 14 losses and one tie.

He is a veteran of the Marine Corps, having been discharged in 1945. During his time in the service he spent two years at Muhlenberg College under the V-12 Program. He graduated from ESSTC in '47 and went on to secure his master's degree from New York University in '52. Currently he is pursuing a doctor's degree in education at the University of Maryland.

While at Brookville he tutored the school's golf team to two straight District Nine championships, going unbeaten enroute to the titles.

His basketball team at Brookville compiled a 33-9 log and were rated one of the best in the area.

Face Top Foes

Gettysburg is a member of the Southern Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association and faces such opponents as Hershey, Middletown, Shippensburg, Mechanicsburg, Waynesboro, Carlisle, and Westminster, Md.

He expects to use the split-T formation at Gettysburg, the same offense he expected to employ at Lehigh.

Braves Make Bid For Schoendienst

NEW YORK, June 11 (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves, apparently convinced they erred in turning down an opportunity to acquire Red Schoendienst last March, now are making a strong bid for the New York Giants' star second baseman, it was learned today.

According to one who should know, Milwaukee General Manager John Quinn has offered pitcher Ray Crone, outfielder Wes Covington and infielder Danny O'Connell to the Giants for Schoendienst and outfielder Don Mueller.

Both Quinn and Chub Feeney, vice-president of the Giants, denied that a transaction between the two clubs was on the fire but both admitted they had talked about the possibility of a trade.

"Right now I would have to say the outlook for a trade is not bright," Feeney said. "We certainly are further away now than we were last winter—and we didn't make it then."

'500' Victors Set For Trenton

TRENTON, N. J.—With the entry of Troy Ruttman of Lynwood, California, expected for the 300-mile Hamilton Township Sweepstakes, scheduled for June 23 at the Trenton International Speedway, all three past winners of the Indianapolis Speedway annual auto classic still active in competition will have been signed by Promotional Manager Sam Nunn.

Ruttman, winner of the 1952 Indianapolis marathon, will join Johnny Parsons, who captured the 1950 race and Sam Hanks, who collected $103,814 in his 135 mile-per-hour record-shattering triumph this May 30.

Birds To Cut 3 Bonus Kids

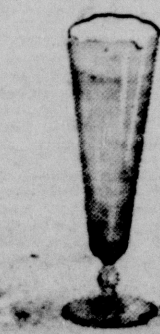

BALTIMORE, June 11 (AP)—Manager Paul Richards signalled an end today, for the time being at least, to his mass effort to build a winning baseball team for the Baltimore Orioles with bonus kids.

He sent third baseman Wayne Causey to San Antonio and announced that outfielders Jim Pyburn and Bob Nelson would follow him to the minors when their two-year required stay with the Orioles expires.

Pyburn's term is up next Sunday, and Nelson's a week later. Richards said Pyburn probably will go to San Antonio also and Nelson to Knoxville, San Antonio is Double A class in the Texas League and Knoxville a grade lower in the Sally League.

Departure of the three will leave the Orioles with only one—and their cheapest—bonus prospect, southpaw pitcher Billy O'Dell.

He was signed for $12,000 the year before Richards became manager.

Changes In Handicap Group Features Action In Rich Pocono Mountain Bowling Classic

THREE CHANGES in the handicap division of the Pocono Mountain $40,000-plus Bowling Tournament, highlighted action at the Barrett Bowling Center over the weekend.

Mike Megargel, of Mountainhome, who had led the pack since opening night, May 2, was ousted from his first place position in the handicap group and dropped to fourth as three newcomers took over the first three positions.

Heading the handicap division is Vincent Buda, of Canastota, N. Y., with 866. In number two spot is Joe Stokes, Scranton, with 846, followed by Albert Lansky, Haskell, N. J., with 844. Megargel, in fourth place, owns a 842 score.

Scratch Leaders

No changes were made in the scratch division of the richest of jackpots in Pennsylvania bowling circles. Ray Bluth, St. Louis, and Lee Jougland, Detroit, are still knotted for first with 857 each. Trailing are Don Carter, St. Louis, with 839, and Dick Weber, St. Louis, with 827.

In the Slate Belt phase of the classic—six-game $1,000 sweepstakes—Chuck Hamilton, of Highland, Ind., is first in the scratch division with 1315, while Frank Y. Kuboski of Hazleton heads the group with 1303.

Following Hamilton in the scratch bowling are Glenn Allison, Chicago, 1288; Buzz Stewart, Wilnessey, Florissant, Mo., 1265.

2nd In Handicap

Second in the handicap at the Bangor Bowling Center is G. Jones, Scranton, 1308; Dave Reilly, Washington, Pa., 1301, and Rich Irvin, Allentown, 1296.

Tournament officials announced that the Pocono Mountain side of the classic, a 731 scratch is still in the money, while in the handicap division a 788 is holding up.

The tournament at Bangor and Barrett still has three weeks to run. Reglers wishing to enter are urged to send in their entry blanks or get in contact with Arch Dally, tournament president, at the Barrett Bowling Center, Allentown, Del., 1269; and Tom Hen-

Sturdivant, Boone Fined

CHICAGO, June 11 (AP)—Pitcher Tom Sturdivant of the New York Yankees and first baseman Ray Boone of the Detroit Tigers were fined $100 each by American League President Will Harridge for engaging in a scuffle in Sunday's game between the Yanks and Tigers in Detroit.

The fight took place in the third inning after Sturdivant had sent Boone sprawling in the dirt with a fast inside pitch. The ball hit Boone's bat and glanced off his shoulder. The incident followed back-to-back homers by Detroit's Frank Bolling and Charley Maxwell.

Charged Pitcher

Boone charged out to the mound where he was met by Sturdivant. Both players started swinging but according to bystanders, the only punch landed was by Sturdivant, a right to Boone's cheek. Then followed the usual swinging match.

"I don't mind being dusted off if they throw at my legs," Boone said later, "but no man is going to throw at my head and get away with it."

Sturdivant denied trying to throw a beanball, insisting the ball got away from him. Both were ejected from the game.

HURRICANE TESTS TRAINER'S MUSCLES—Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson, Floyd Patterson's foe at New York City's Polo Grounds the night of July 29, tests whether Trainer Freddy Brown, left, is ready to start the six-week workout grind in preparation for heavyweight title fight. Looking on is Harry Freedman, owner of the country club, where Jackson will train for the top bout of his young career. Shot was taken after Brown and Jackson finished a game of ping pong. Hurricane starts heavy drills for Patterson test next Monday at Harry's Farm, seven miles from Stroudsburg. (Staff Photo by MacLeod)

ESSTC President To Speak At Christ Episcopal Church

DR. LEROY J. KOEHLER, president of East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, will speak to the men of Christ Episcopal Church, Stroudsburg, following the Communion breakfast at 8 a. m. on Trinity Sunday, June 16. Dr. Koehler will speak on the Jamestown Colony.

The Men's Corporate Communion and Breakfast is being sponsored by the St. Chrysostom's Society of Christ Church, to commemorate the 350th Anniversary of the first recorded service of Holy Communion celebrated at Jamestown, Va., on the third Sunday after Trinity, June 21, 1607, by Rev. Robert Hunt, vicar of James City Parish, and first Episcopal priest permanently stationed in the New World.

The Jamestown colonists brought with them the political heritage of English common law, the conception of civil rights, the recognized right of representative government. And they brought the historic Faith of their Church as it had been received and held in England from the days of the Apostles, Catholic though reformed, enriched by such specifically English contributions, as the superb liturgy of the Book of Common Prayer and the Holy Scriptures, first the Bishop's Bible and a few years later the incomparable King James Version.

Dr. Leroy J. Koehler

Inseparable

Life and religion were inseparable in the minds of the colonists and in the social structure they framed at Jamestown. As Virginia prospered, the church spread, becoming the principal communion in the Southern colonies, and influential elsewhere also. Three-quarters of the signers of the Declaration of Independence and many other leaders of the infant United States were spiritual heirs of the Jamestown Christians, Washington, Hamilton, Mason, Jay and Marshall, for example, were nurtured in the Episcopal Church, (the name adopted after the Revolutionary War). A new colony and an ancient Church came to the American continent together in 1607. Since the founding of this nation the Episcopal Church has continued making its unique contribution to America.

On Trinity Sunday Christ Church begins its summer schedule of Sunday services at 8 and 10 a. m. These hours of worship will continue in effect up to and including Sunday, Sept. 1.
